Course Description
This course will focus on the roles educational leaders play in improving the teaching and learning process. Special emphasis will be given to the role of principals and administrators as curricular and instructional leaders, as well as how to effectively involve other educators in these roles. Using ideas related to curriculum development, supervision, and instructional leadership, the courses’ academic and field-based activities will allow students to examine current instructional leadership practices and to determine ways to expand these practices. Special attention will be given on the principal’s role in supervision and evaluation of staff. Attention also will be given to the dilemmas and constraints influencing an educator’s ability to impact curriculum and instruction.

Relationship of This Course to the Program Knowledge Base
Students who enter study in educational leadership at UNC are exposed to five domains in which they: (1) develop a personal vision for educational leadership; (2) examine and use modes of inquiry to help them frame problems and gather information; (3) shape organizations through management and leadership practices; (4) explore the professional development role of educational leaders and (5) examine influences from the external environment that affect educational policies, structures, and operations. Learning experiences in this course contribute directly to the underlying beliefs of our leadership program, which are as follows:

- Human growth and development are lifelong pursuits.
- Leadership encompasses a learned set of knowledge, skills, attitudes and practices.
- Organizations are artifacts of a larger society.
- Learning, teaching, and collegiality are fundamental activities of organizations.
- Validated knowledge and active inquiry form the basis of practice.
- Moral and ethical imperatives drive leadership behavior.
- Effective leadership in organizations depends on individual and team efforts.
- Leaders' behaviors and actions model their beliefs and values.
- Leaders effect positive change in individuals and organizations.
- Effective leaders develop positive interpersonal relationships.
- Diversity strengthens organizations.
- Organizations and leaders are accountable.

Standards from Professional Organizations and Learned Societies
The courses in this program are intended to prepare individuals to serve as leaders of educational organizations. The learning experiences are designed to address the skills, competencies, and performance expectations identified by numerous professional organizations and learned societies with an interest in the preparation of educational leaders. Among the organizations consulted are the American Association of School Administrators, the National Association of Elementary School Principals, the National Middle School Association, the National Association of Secondary School Principals, the National Policy Board for Educational Administration, and the University Council for Educational Administration.

2. Standard II: Principals demonstrate instructional leadership
2.1. Curriculum, Instruction, Learning, and Assessment: Principals enable school-wide conversations about standards for curriculum, instruction, assessment, and data on student learning based on research and best practices, and ensure that the ideas developed are integrated into the school’s curriculum and instructional approaches. Principals demonstrate current knowledge of research in teaching, learning and child development, and ensure that their schools provide a comprehensive education that promotes cognitive, physical, mental, social emotional health and growth. They ensure that an age-appropriate curriculum consistent with the Colorado Academic Standards is taught and monitored through effective formative assessment practices, and the use of summative assessments. They engage staff in developing knowledge about student development, curriculum, instruction, assessment, and analysis and use of data in order to establish and achieve high expectations for students. Principals ensure high expectations for all students, including students identified as gifted, students with disabilities, and students considered “at risk” of school failure.
2.2. Instructional Time: Principals create processes and schedules which maximize instructional, collaborative, and preparation time. They ensure that teachers and other adults working with students have time, structures, opportunities and the expectation of planning, working, reflecting and celebrating together to improve instructional practice.
2.3. Implementing High-Quality Instruction: Principals support teachers through feedback and appropriate professional development in order to ensure that rigorous, relevant, and appropriate instruction and learning experiences, aligned across P-20, are delivered to and for all students. They demonstrate current knowledge of best practices in PK-20 instruction and assessment, and are able to monitor delivery of high-quality instruction. They encourage and support teachers in utilizing research-based methods to develop and employ multiple instructional approaches; developing personalized learning opportunities for diverse learners; planning lessons that allow students to apply and demonstrate learning connections in creative and meaningful ways; integrating technology and formative assessment practices into instruction to increase student engagement and learning; and using multiple methods of progress monitoring to track student learning and adjust instruction as needed. Principals ensure that the school’s structures and daily schedules are supportive of these instructional goals. They are good listeners and coaches and are able to give and receive feedback.
2.4. High Expectations for All Students: Principals hold all staff accountable for setting and achieving rigorous performance goals for all students, and empower staff to achieve these ambitious student outcomes. Principals make available to the school community, as appropriate, data about student performance. Principals actively engage the school community to interpret and respond to available data on student achievement and other performance indicators. Principals collect and analyze available data regularly to monitor progress and make appropriate adjustments designed to improve performance outcomes. Principals ensure that data are turned into meaningful information that can be used by teachers, students and parents/guardians to identify goals, implement evidence-based strategies, monitor and evaluate the impact of instructional programs, and promote organizational learning.
3. Standard III: Principals Demonstrate School Cultural and Equity Leadership
3.3. Equity Pedagogy: Principals demonstrate a commitment to a diverse population of students by creating an inclusive and celebratory school culture, and provide direction in meeting the needs of diverse student talents, experiences, and challenges. Principals ensure that all adults in the school have high expectations for all students, and believe that all students can reach those high expectations. They support the use of a variety of teaching styles designed to meet the diverse needs of individual students. Students’ individual backgrounds are valued as a resource, and principals advocate for approaches to instruction and behavioral supports that build on student strengths.
4.3. Teacher and Staff Evaluation: Principals evaluate staff performance using the district’s educator evaluation system in order to ensure that teachers and other staff are evaluated in a fair and equitable manner with a focus on improving performance and, thus, student achievement. They implement a systematic process for evaluation of all staff members that leads to the continuous improvement of performance. For teachers, this includes the provision of frequent and timely feedback and supports. Principals recognize and celebrate quality teachers, and provide professional development coaching for teachers needing support in order to improve instruction and student learning outcomes.
7. Standard VII: Principals Demonstrate Leadership around Student Growth
7.1. Student Academic Achievement and Growth: Principals take responsibility for ensuring all students are progressing toward post-secondary and workforce readiness by high school graduation. Principals prepare students for success by ensuring mastery of Colorado Academic Standards, including 21st century skills.

The University of Northern Colorado recently introduced pluses and minuses to its grading system. In Educational Leadership and Policy Studies the implementation of pluses and minuses in grading has been left up to the discretion of each professor. For this course pluses and minuses will be used to differentiate between the overall assessment/effort of each student if significant discrepancies arise.

Plagiarism or other academic dishonesty of any kind will not be tolerated. The penalty for such action will result in an “F” letter grade for the course and/or additional sanctions as permitted under University policy. If you are unsure of how to properly paraphrase or cite a source in APA style, we encourage you to seek assistance. Problems should be discussed with one of the instructors at your earliest convenience. Situations warranting consequences will be reported to the CEBS Dean. <td>Week One</td>
<td>Introductions</td>
<td>Please share a description/summary of your professional experiences, the position you currently hold, and your career aspirations in this Discussion Forum. Also discuss your understanding of the differences between supervision and evaluation. Please review Colorado Teacher Effectiveness Council report (under Course Materials), the syllabus, and assignments/rubrics and share any questions you might have. You are expected to respond to each week's discussion topic and also to respond to at least 2 postings by others in the class each week for a total of 3 postings each week, with the exception of the two weeks when you will be doing your practice role-plays of the conferencing process in our Collaborate sessions.</td>

<td>Week Two</td>
<td>Effective Teaching</td>
<td>Good teaching is effective teaching, but what does that look like? Most people say that they know it when they see it, but as a supervisor you must know what you are looking for so that you can target your classroom observations and be able to provide specific feedback to teachers that they can use to improve their instruction. This week, after reviewing the Colorado Educator Effectiveness Council's report and their definition of effective teaching and the teacher standards, as well as reading chapters 1-6 in How People Learn, I would like each person to post at least 10 characteristics/behaviors that are observable that one would see in an effective teacher's classroom on a regular basis. These can include lesson planning and assessments, personal characteristics, and classroom management techniques, as well as how cultural diversity is embraced, celebrated, and used to add meaning to students' learning experiences. Please add to the discussion without repeating what others have already identified with your initial post but please remember to comment on what at least two other class members have shared.</td>

Week Seven | Standards-based observations
Document teacher performance on state professional standards using data.

Discuss how you would supervise and evaluate to collect data related to each teacher standard in your state. Remember to respond to at least two other postings!

Note: We will also be discussing how to conduct and provide feedback using walk-throughs in the next COLLABORATE session!

Here is the PLACE question for this week:

b. by examining the number of immigrant students in special education

c. by examining the number of students how participate in sports

d. by examining the attrition rate of all students

Week Eight | Standards-based observation data collection

The ability to collect data during classroom observations/walk-throughs and analyze that data to support greater teacher effectiveness.

Review the data collection tools posted under Course Materials. View the clip "Reading Comprehension Strategies--Making Inferences" in Course Materials. Watch this video clip over the first time just to form an opinion of the lesson design and its delivery. Then watch the lesson again, identifying a specific aspect that you will collect data on. This may be wait time when asking questions, gender distribution of students called on, types of questions asked by the teacher, etc. Focus on only ONE thing. You must use one of the tools posted under Course Materials. Do not use the Glickman examples. Please post your critique of the lesson and delivery AND share the data you collected on the lesson and what you think the teacher could learn from this data you collected.

For fun, visit the Elevate Colorado website and try your hand at watching one of the classroom videos and using the CO Teacher Evaluation Rubric.

You may watch the other video clips for additional practice.

What are the differences in the types of feedback you could give a teacher based on the two different methods of data collection?

The PLACE question for this week builds upon last week's question:

16. What is another factor that Ms. Rose should examine to see if all changes

c. write a formal complaint that the teacher is non-compliant

d. ask other teacher to demonstrate good pedagogy students' needs are being met?

a. the number of parents who attend Parents' Night or conferences

b. the number of these students in the English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) program

c. the number of teacher who attend professional development programs

d. the number of paraprofessionals placed in each room

Assignment 1: Supervision/Evaluation and Instructional Leadership Assignment
ELPS 654: Supervision/Evaluation and Instructional Leadership Assignment
(ELCC 2.1, 2.2, 2.3, 2.4)

The purpose of this assignment is to give students of Educational Leadership the opportunity to gain a deeper understanding of pre-observation conferencing, classroom observation techniques, and post-observation conferencing. During the project, students will conduct two cycles of teacher conferencing and classroom observations using skills learned in class. A student written reflective analysis provides details about the teacher, the supervisory type (directive, collaborative, non-directive) and classroom observation techniques. Feedback from the observed teacher, and student reflection of supervisor/instructional leadership skills are utilized to evolve a Comprehensive Growth Plan with the cooperating teacher.

ELCC 2.1: Candidates understand and can sustain a school culture and instructional program conducive to student learning through collaboration, trust, and a personalized learning environment with high expectations for students.
Students identify a teacher who will allow them to practice observation and conferencing skills. Following an organizational meeting with the teacher to explain the assignment and to understand elements of district culture, the student conducts a pre-observation conference with the teacher using skills learned in class.

ELCC 2.2: Candidates understand and can create and evaluate a comprehensive, rigorous, and coherent curricular and instructional school program.
Soon after the pre-conference, the student conducts a classroom observation for at least 30 minutes using effective instructional program observation techniques leaned from class discussions, videos, and texts.

ELCC 2.3: Candidates understand and can develop and supervise the instructional and leadership capacity of school staff.
Within 2-3 days after the classroom observation, the student will discuss best practice in student learning during a post-observation conference with the cooperating teacher.

ELCC 2.4: Candidates understand and can promote the most effective and appropriate technologies to support teaching and learning in a school environment.
Using notes from the observation and conference data, the student selects and completes a summative evaluation instrument. A professional growth plan for the teacher is prepared using narrative statements for each of the domains/standards on the instrument. The student schedules a final conference with the teacher to discuss the summative evaluation and comprehensive professional growth plan, recommending effective and appropriate technologies and instructional practices.

Steps for this assignment:
Identify a teacher who will allow you to practice the pre-conference, observation, and post observation conference cycle two times. Please select a teacher who is comfortable allowing you to practice and who will take the exercise seriously.
Meet with the teacher to let him/her know the purpose of the assignment and to explain what you will be doing. Let the teacher know that you will not use his/her real name, but a pseudonym. Arrange dates for the pre-conferences, classroom observations, and post-observation conferences.

Conduct one pre-observation conference with the teacher using the skills learned in class. Soon after the pre-conference, conduct a classroom observation for at least 30 minutes using one of the classroom observation techniques learned from the videos or from the text. Within 2-3 days after the classroom observation, conduct a post-observation conference with the teacher. You will go through this cycle twice. Please select two different observation techniques for each of the two observations. After each post-observation conference, ask the teacher to give you feedback on the pre-conference, classroom observation, and the post-observation conference.

Written Product:

For this assignment, you should submit questions and notes from the pre-observation conferences, notes/instrument from the classroom observations, and questions/notes from the post-observation conferences.

Be sure to explain what you would suggest as a continuing growth plan for the teacher observed.

Reflective Analysis. In the reflective analysis, you should address the following:

Provide background about the teacher (subject, grade, years of teaching experience, etc.)

How did you feel about the way you conducted the pre-conferences? What would you have done differently? Which of the 3 supervisory types (directive, collaborative, non-directive) did you use? Why did you choose the type you selected?

Which classroom observation techniques did you utilize during the 2 observations? To what extent did you feel comfortable using these techniques? What would you have done differently during the classroom observations if you could repeat them?

How did you feel about the way the post-observation conferences went? Which supervisory style did you use?

What feedback did you receive from the teacher concerning the whole process, in particular, the feedback from the post-observation conferences?

What did you learn about yourself as a supervisor/instructional leader?

Assignment 2: Evaluation Interviews

In order to connect the concepts of instructional leadership, supervision, and evaluation practices in school districts, we are asking you to obtain various materials and information from your school district. The intent is to stimulate class discussion by contrasting various practices/models and by determining important ways to improve teaching practices and student learning. In particular, please complete the following tasks:

1. Obtain a copy of the teacher evaluation instrument used in your district. Please bring the instrument to class and be prepared to discuss how it is used, its purpose, and the expected outcomes of the evaluation process.

2. Interview at least 2 colleagues, one teacher and one principal, who have direct experience with teacher supervision and evaluation and ask them the following questions:
   a. Does the teacher evaluation instrument capture the important aspects of a teacher’s role? If not, what is missing?
   b. What are the purposes and expected outcomes of the evaluation process?
   c. Is the evaluation instrument and process used differently for teachers who have varying levels of experience and expertise? If so, what are the differences?
   d. How would you suggest improving the teacher supervision and evaluation process in your district?
   e. What is the process for remediating and terminating a teacher in your district?

Take notes during the interviews or audiotape the interview (if permission given by interviewee), capturing key points made by interviewees. Prepare a written report of the interviews summarizing interviewee responses to the questions in #2. In the written report, make sure to answer each of the above questions for the teacher respondent and principal respondent and indicate similarities and differences among the responses. Include your reflections as to the interviewees’ responses.
